

The Canadian Institute of Management announces international reciprocity with the UK Chartered Management Institute (CMI)

February 2018

The Canadian Institute of Management ("CIM Chartered Managers Canada") is pleased to announce that it has reached an exciting new milestone in international reciprocity. Holders of the CIM Chartered Manager (C.Mgr.) designation can now obtain the CMI Chartered Manager (CMgr) designation through reciprocity. Conversely, all CMI Chartered Managers can obtain the Canadian equivalent. In order to obtain these designations, applicants simply need to provide evidence of chartered status and join the respective institute, adhering to its local professional requirements and continuing professional development commitments.

CIM Chartered Managers Canada sees this as the first step in creating a unified global chartered qualification in management that is recognised worldwide as meeting high standards of professionalism, ethical conduct and continuing professional development that can make a de-facto contribution to global business organisations.

CIM Chartered Managers Canada is Canada's chartered professional management institute. Founded in 1942, it has provided education and certification to over 80,000 managers. The UK Chartered Management Institute has a worldwide membership of 150,000+ managers and is recognised as one of the world's leading professional management bodies. Both the CIM and CMI have a close working relationship and share mutual interests in developing the management profession on a global scale.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Dr. Jelavic".

Dr. Matthew Jelavic, C.Mgr.
National President and CEO
Canadian Institute of Management

Further information:

For further information or interviews please contact:

- Matthew Jelavic, C.Mgr., President & CEO of CIM Chartered Managers Canada
president@cim.ca
(705) 725-8926